This page has been accessed 81038 times since April 17, 2017.The World Health Organization (WHO) has announced a new vaccine against rotavirus, the leading cause of severe gastroenteritis in infants and young children in the developing world, is available for purchase from GlaxoSmithKline (GSK). The RotaTeq vaccine is also manufactured by Merck. Rotavirus is a highly contagious virus, causing diarrhoea in young children and vomiting in adults. It is estimated that each year more than half a million deaths are caused by rotavirus. In the United States alone, rotavirus causes more than 200,000 hospitalisations, more than 500,000 outpatient visits, and more than 20,000 deaths every year. Rotavirus vaccines are now available for children in nearly 100 countries and they have helped to reduce the severity and duration of rotavirus diarrhoea in children. However, in the developing world, where two-thirds of all rotavirus deaths occur, the prevalence of rotavirus-associated diarrhoea remains high. By introducing a single, highly effective, affordable vaccine against rotavirus into national immunisation programmes, WHO aims to protect millions of children worldwide from severe diarrhoea, a disease which leads to long-term consequences such as stunting and impaired physical and cognitive development. GSK Vaccines is one of a number of manufacturers which, with WHO support, has improved vaccine quality and ensured that it is globally available for purchase at affordable prices. "The RotaTeq vaccine is an important addition to the WHO Expanded Programme on Immunization (EPI) and gives children who need it an affordable, safe and effective way to protect themselves against rotavirus," said Dr Abraham Laranjo, Director of WHO's Global Immunization Division. "In countries where it is available, the vaccine has already shown to be effective in reducing the number of diarrhoea episodes and hospitalisations due to rotavirus infection. RotaTeq should be added to the EPI in countries in which it is not yet available, and will protect the most at-risk children, including those in difficult-to-reach or impoverished settings. The RotaTeq vaccine is included in the WHO Global Vaccine Action Plan, under
